Assigning engaging student projects and finding ways for students to easily collaborate - both inside and outside of class - can be challenging. Join Nikki D Robertson as she explores how Google Classroom can help ease these challenges and facilitate collaboration. Nikki will provide an overview of Google Classroom and show how to use it to easily assign projects to students. In addition, she will share examples of collaborative class and student projects that provide opportunities for student learning, creation, and feedback. Come discover how Google Classroom can help you take student collaboration to a whole new level!

This course empowers teachers to support At-Risk Students Through Instructional Technology.

Lunch will be provided.

Please bring a laptop to this session. Participant must complete additional out of class assignment to earn PLU.
