JAY HAKES, DIRECTOR
Carter Center

"The Flap Over Fracking: The Challenges and Opportunities of America's Shale Oil and Natural Gas Revolution"

During the 1990's, Jay Hakes served as Administrator of the Energy Information Administration. In that capacity, he oversaw most of the federal government's major energy data collections and analysis. He testified before congressional committees on energy matters on 25 occasions.

Since becoming the Director of the Jimmy Carter Presidential Library and Museum in 2000, Hakes has remained active in energy affairs. In 2008, he published the book A Declaration of Energy Independence (Wiley & Sons). In 2010, he went on a two-week speaking tour of China and Singapore and later accepted a seven-month assignment as Director of Research and Policy for the National Commission on the BP Deepwater Horizon Oil Spill.

He is frequently quoted in the New York Times and other national news media on America's oil and gas resources.

Hakes began his career teaching political science at the University of New Orleans and holds a Ph.D. from Duke University.
