Why Human Trafficking Victims Are Different

(Join us for a presentation on why human trafficking victims do not always act the way we expect "victims" to act, and why we need to change our practices to address issues of trauma, as well as address the role of early contact from law enforcement, prosecutors, victim assistance coordinators (VACs), human trafficking service providers, and peer-to-peer specialists in strengthening cases for prosecution. The Director of the Anti-Human Trafficking initiative at Empower 225 and survivor specialist will explain why trauma-informed care should guide our interactions and interviews with victims of human trafficking.)
